Note-taking Note-taking, as its name suggests, is a passive process: it involves simply writing down as much as you hear from a tutor - or read in a textbook - without discriminating between useful and less useful information. The notes that are produced tend to be very descriptive and broadly focused. Since note-taking is passive in nature and involves less thought, it leads to surface-level, temporary learning. Note-making

Teach middle schoolers good note-taking practices by modeling a T-chart. Start by identifying the title of the article and adding it to the chart after the "T =" symbol. Then, read the next two sentences and zero in on a specific idea from the passage (in this case, one idea would be climate extremes). Demonstrate writing the specific idea (climate extremes) in the T-chart, next to the key symbol.
